Wild Fowl

How oft against the sunset sky,
We watched the zigzag spiralling flight,
In unforgotten autumn gone too soon,
In unforgotten springs.

Creatures of dissipation, as they fly
Above all lands bound by the cooling foam,
In misty seas, wild waters and unknown
These wild things keep their hunger.

They know the tundra of Siberian coast,
And tigre marshes by the Indian sea.
They know the clouds all night return,
From Crow to Red Deer.

Dark flying ranks against the winter sky.
It tells the sweep of business of things.
Symbol of Autumn’s vanished age,
Symbol of coming springs.

Pai Ta Shen

To a Water Fowl - Bryant

All day thy wings have fanned.
At that fair height, the cold thin air
Yet stops not weary to the distant land.
Nor the dark night so near.

And soon that trail shall end,
Soon shall they find a summer rest,
And dream among thy fellows.
Nest shall be laid,
Scone on thy sheltered nest.

The old home—gone to gone
Guides through the sky, a blizky okay
This certain flight.
In the long way that I must tread alone shall lead my steps right.
